

Try answering the following questions for the next class.

1. What are the advantages and disadvantages of different types of programming language processors?
2. From the perspective of manual natural language translation, what are the steps required for compiler work
3. What aspects of high-level programming languages are more advanced than low-level programming languages? What do you think the compiler needs from this?
4. Many people believe that compilation principles involve many courses in computer science. Which courses and contents do you think will be involved, and why?
5. Many Turing Award winners come from the field of compilation, please analyze the reasons behind it.
6. Compilers are considered basic software, and currently many large companies are developing their own compilers. Please consider analyzing the reasons behind this.